COMPASSIONATE
FRIENDS of Green Bay
Supporting Family After a Child Dies

A Quarterly Newsletter

by and for Bereaved Parents

April/May/June 2022

Our Mission Statement:

When a child dies, at any age, the family suffers intense pain and may feel hopeless and isolated. The Compassionate Friends provides highly personal comfort, hope, and support to every family experiencing the death of a son or a daughter, a brother or a sister, or a grandchild, and helps others better assist the grieving family.

What Does the Future Hold

At our February meeting we held a discussion about the future of the chapter. Now, don't panic or jump to conclusions that the Chapter is in trouble or going to close, it is not. The chapter is in good shape financially but we can always use donations. In fact not long ago we talked about how we could raise money by doing outside fundraisers but we didn't have to do any of those. Mickey and myself are not getting any younger. We have been coming to TCF for almost 17 years now and we know that we have to plan for the future and ensure the Chapter is in good hands once we are gone. I have been the Treasurer of the Chapter for almost 15 years now and it is not a difficult job. But sooner or later, I plan on retiring from work and most if not all of my outside activities so I can enjoy my retirement.

Mickey has been Chapter Leader probably going on 7 plus years now. As National has always stressed, chapters need to rotate leadership so that the chapter does not become stale and there are new ideas for programs, etc. Mickey also does the newsletter and that is probably the most work of being chapter leader. Plus the Chapter leader does not have to be the publisher of the newsletter. This is why Chapter's have steering committees to divide up these duties. You will see at the bottom of the newsletter the current steering committee members. The cards that you receive on your child's birthday and on the anniversary of their passing are done by the 2 Sue's.

We are not asking anyone to come in and immediately step into a leadership role but to volunteer to join the steering committee. Once on the steering committee you will see how the chapter functions and can decide what role might best suit you. Most folks in our chapter believe the role of the chapter leader is to run the chapter, publish the newsletter and come up with the programs. No, this is far from the role of the chapter leader but when no one else comes forward, it unfortunately falls on the chapter leader. In fact, the chapter leader does not have to lead the monthly meetings. Many chapters have a meeting facilitator in addition to the chapter leader who conducts the meetings. The last thing Mickey and I want to see is the chapter closing in several years. We have seen the Fox Valley chapter close, a new chapter open in Oshkosh only to close in less than months, the Door County chapter close and there was a chapter in Casco that has also closed. Right now there are only 11 chapters in Wisconsin and I believe at one time there were almost 20 chapters. The closest one to us is Antigo otherwise you have to go down to the Milwaukee area.

So please give this some serious consideration and feel free to reach out to Mickey and join us on the steering committee to see what role you might be best suited for.

In Peaceful Sadness, Melissa and Emily's Mom and Dad

MY APRIL CHILD

Paula Funk
In loving memory of my daughter, Anna
TCF Safe Harbor Chapter, MI

When our daughters were growing up the arrival of spring-time was a favorite time of the year, filled with anticipation of the coming of special days of family fun. The freshness of the air, the brilliant colors of spring time trees and flowers, and the song of the birds returned from their winter retreat resounded the message of hope and that life was good. We had survived another cold, snowy Michigan winter and were soon to be rewarded with blue sky, sunshine and temperatures well above freezing!

Birthdays in our family were a time of celebration together. Each year Larry, Anna, Debbie and I, and perhaps a friend or two, would celebrate Anna's April birthday by dining at her favorite Mexican restaurant. There would be lots of silliness and laughter. During her teenage years, Anna would always forewarn us not to have the staff come to our table to sing their crazy birthday song. Of course, since we always insisted that our role as parents was to embarrass our children, her threats and warnings could not stop our tomfoolery. I believe she secretly enjoyed the attention.

As Mother's Day approached, we looked forward again to spending the day together as a family. We would attend church, go out for my favorite brunch, have lots of conversation, fill our bellies to the max, laugh until we cried, be silly, make memories... That was before...

Then the unthinkable happened. My April child died. How could those special days of love and togetherness, laughter and fun become among the most dreaded days a mother must face? How could those days that we had once anticipated with joy and excitement bring such unbelievable heartache and confusion, loneliness and tears?

During those first few years we were simply lost. This was new, undesired, and certainly not requested, territory that we had been forced to enter. What were we supposed to do? How were we supposed to act? I just wanted to run away on her birthday. For several years we did just that. With hearts filled with the numbness of fresh grief, our restructured family of three would hop in the car and head out-of-town. We would spend the day busying ourselves with whatever it took to survive. We would laugh half-heartedly, share memories, or cry together as we struggled to discover our new identity as a family without Anna's physical presence.

As always, only a few short weeks following Anna's birthday Mother's Day would arrive right on schedule. The traditions we had come to love and enjoy became intensely painful. It became an impossible task to attend church services or go out for brunch. Seeing families enjoying their togetherness pierced my heart with an endless ache. My tear-filled eyes burned at the thought of being surrounded by "intact" families. Feelings of anger and resentment overwhelmed my heart. On the inside I wanted to lash out at all those mothers and fathers who were surrounded by all of their children and those sisters and brothers who had no clue what it would be like to lose a sibling. As the day drew to a close I felt tremendous relief that it was over. Exhausted, I would lay silently with my head on my pillow as quiet tears lulled me to sleep.

It seems impossible that it has been nine birthdays and nine Mothers' Days since Anna died. In my heart it was only yesterday. I can still see her smile and hear her laugh. I can feel the warmth of a quick hug as she heads out the door. With each passing year comes a new reality of what it means to be a bereaved parent, of what it means to find a new normal for our lives. The pain continues to occasionally catch me off guard, but it is softer now. The tears still come, but less frequently. Warm memories bring joyful moments to the emptiness. I smile quietly to myself, reassured that Anna lives on in our hearts and lives, as well as in the hearts and lives of those around us. Once again each April we celebrate the day of her birth, for her life has been a gift of unimaginable joy. Our traditional Mother's day rituals have changed to new ones. There is more laughter now, fewer painful tears. I rejoice that I can celebrate that I am Debbie's Mom, and now Scott's mother-in-law, as well! Life is good.

The winter has been long and cold, as has been the winter of our grief. Springtime has arrived. The sunshine and blue sky, the purple crocus and yellow daffodils pushing through the warming earth bring hope of renewal and reassurance that life continues. Although there is an irreparable hole in my soul and an emptiness in my heart that will never leave, I am forever grateful that Anna lived with us for 23 years. I am eternally thankful that I am and I always will be Anna's Mom. May the warmth and brilliance of springtime fill your hearts with times of peace and hope and love.

A FATHER'S LOVE IS PRICELESS

Annette Mennen Baldwin

TCF Katy, TX

In Memory of my son Todd Mennen

This will be my husband's third Father's Day without my son, Todd. My husband and I married when Todd was eight years old. Todd's biological father had little in common with him; my son desperately needed a role model who also provided guidance and structure. One of the reasons I decided to marry John was his real concern and love for my son.

As Todd grew, he and John took many trips together...fishing in Canada and meeting Jimmy Doolittle, skiing in Colorado together, going to car shows, car parts swap meets, always attending Autorama in Houston. Todd confided in John that his dream was to rebuild a GTO and enter it in Autorama. John took Todd to the "Pac Man" Tournament in Houston where Todd placed in the top 10 in the city. These were excursions that Todd and John shared.

John taught Todd how to change the oil and other fluids in a car, rebuild an engine, handle a hammer, measure twice and cut once, use a Shopsmith and other electric tools, lay a solid ceramic tile floor, read a blueprint and so much more that every boy should know.

But most of all, John showed Todd how to love a woman and children with his heart and soul. He never actively gave instructions...his example of gentleness, small gifts, sweet compliments, thoughtfulness, cheerful attitude and perpetual optimism helped to shape the man that my son became.

At Todd's wedding rehearsal dinner, each family member was asked by my dad what they would like to say to the bride or groom. John tried to express his feelings to Todd but his tendency to wear his emotions on his sleeve overcame him. He ended up in tears. After the speeches, Todd came over and hugged John; I snapped a picture of that moment. It will always be a treasure to John and to me.

After he married, Todd and John continued to do things together. They went to car shows, worked together on projects in Todd's home and our home. At family gatherings they would sit and talk about the world, business activities, career goals and their optimistic dreams for hours at a time.

The last project that Todd and John did together was put up signage for a company that I had inherited from my Dad a few years earlier. They drove 1,000 miles to get there. Those five days were great for them both. Todd worked hard helping John get the signs mounted and winterizing the company's building. He picked out memorabilia that was my dad's to bring home and keep. It was a sentimental journey.

On the trip home, the unthinkable happened. The cruise control was set at 70 mph; a vehicle in the right lane suddenly swerved into John's lane, tapping the Dodge Durango's right front quarter panel. John's automatic reaction was to swerve away from the drifting vehicle. For reasons yet unknown, the airbag deployed, the Durango launched across the median at 70 mph, skidded into the oncoming traffic, slammed into a semi trailer, rolled over and landed on its wheels. Todd suffered massive head injuries and injuries to the right side of his body. John was bruised from the airbag but refused medical treatment.

And so after heroic efforts on the part of an angel nurse who witnessed the accident, Todd was transported to a hospital. The doctors worked feverishly to bring him back. He was stabilized and loaded on a life flight helicopter, but he died a minute later. John was still standing at the heliport when the helicopter landed. "He's gone", they told him. John screamed and cried as he walked alongside the gurney into the hospital. John stayed with Todd for a long time after he died. He talked to him. He called me. He talked to Todd some more. He continued to ask Todd "Why? Why did you die? Why wasn't it me?" This question still haunts him.

So this Father's Day I will remind John how much he did for Todd, how much he contributed to shaping the man that Todd became and how much Todd loved him. There is little else that I can say to this gentle man who wears his emotions on his sleeve, contributed so much to the formation of a very special man and loved my son with all his heart.

A special thank you to Sue DeLong and Sue Van Straten for their time, talent and dedication, for sending out the birthday and anniversary cards to all the bereaved families. It is truly appreciated.

Come Sit With Me
Judy Peckinpaugh
TCF Inland Empire, CA

Come sit with me awhile and let me
Hold your hand, I understand your Sorrow and know you need a friend.

I understand the pain that lies within your heart,
I have felt the silent screams that tear you all apart.

I know about the sleepless nights that last so very long,
I understand the emptiness when you hear that special song.

Come share with me your memories and let me be
Your friend, you can cry, laugh or say nothing at all,
And I will understand.

Come sit with me my friend, I'll try to help you through.
I understand my friend, for I have been there too.
